What Makes a Portrait Interesting?

Perhaps it captures the essence of a subject, maybe a cherished memory. Is it humorous, clever, or perhaps you just like the photo? As photographers, that's what we strive for.

When I look at my work, many times I notice that they are what I call “Environmental Portrait's”.

That means that the background or foreground is an important element of the photograph.

What is the subject doing? Where are they located and why?

I love telling their story. I also love to take portraits that captivate and intrigue.

BIOGRAPHY

WHAT PEOPLE SAY

*“The essence of leadership is vision. You can't blow and uncertain
trumpet.”*

Father Theodore Hesburgh

Dad was a small town photographer in the days of B&W film: wedding, portrait, commercial, events, he did it all. I remember when I was small, sometimes he would set up the camera and I would be able to press the cable release for him. He showed me how to develop and print film. Dad's photography left me with some great memories. Later in life, I found myself drawn back to photography. I decided to pick up a camera. My dad has long since passed, but when I take a picture, I am connected with him. --

Every person has a story worth telling...

Whether a person spends a lifetime developing a skill , or someone who creates a mini museum in their front yard with antique cars, trucks, gas pumps and creates an atmosphere where it's forever 1939.

People are creative. The environment they create, the work they enjoy, tells a compelling story.
